

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS

In Cases of Sexual and Interpersonal Violence Students have the right:

1. To report to the police;
2. To have Stony Brook take your report seriously;
3. Not to be pressured by Stony Brook to report or participate in any investigation or process;
4. For Stony Brook's process to be fair, impartial and provide an opportunity to be heard;
5. To be treated with dignity and to receive from Stony Brook courteous, fair and respectful healthcare and counseling services;
6. To report free from the suggestion that you should have acted differently or that you are at fault;
7. Not to be required to unnecessarily repeat your account of the incident;
8. To be protected from retaliation;
9. To have access to at least one level of an appeal;
10. To be accompanied by an advisor during all meetings and hearings; and
11. To exercise your civil rights and practice your religion without interference by Stony Brook's process.

SEE IT? HEAR IT? ARE YOU A VICTIM?

ReportIt.

Stony Brook University is proud of its long standing commitment to equal employment and educational opportunity. Any form of discrimination, including gender and/or sex based discrimination, is prohibited by Stony Brook University policy and federal and state laws such as Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. Sexual harassment, stalking, sexual assault, domestic violence, and dating violence are all extreme forms of gender and/or sex based discrimination. If you have been a victim or if you are aware of any Title IX discrimination, Stony Brook wants to hear from you.

Report Sexual Misconduct and/or any other incident of discrimination 24/7
